In District 4

Solid waste tops election issues

by ROGER RUTHHART
Managing Editor

The campaign for the Republican nomination for district four county board member has centered around a variety of issues that should give Antioch residents food for thought before they cast their ballots in the March 20 Primary.

Antioch Township Supervisor Jim Fields is the lone incumbent on the ballot following the retiring of Howard (Bud) Scott of Lake Villa. His opponents are all former board members, Janet Kapischke of Lindenhurst, Fred Popp of Lake Villa and Joe Tobolik of Ingleside.

Both Tobolik and Kapischke had been running independent campaigns while Fields and Popp, Lake Villa Township supervisor, are buoyed by the endorsement of the Republican Committeemen in Antioch, Lake Villa and Grant townships.

Fields and Popp have run on their records of service, both as supervisors and county board members, and their concern for issues such as solid waste, police patrols, building and zoning concerns and the need for expansion of the county jail.

Kapischke too is running on her record of service during her term on the county board. Much of her campaign has been oriented to Lake Villa Township where she has attacked Popp's attendance record during his last term on the board as well as his lack of time spent in the office as township supervisor.

She has also challenged the fact that if elected, Popp will hold three jobs—one with Illinois Bell, which Popp promises he will resign from, one as supervisor and the third as county board member.

Tobolik is running hard on his well-known pro-growth position as demonstrated by his position on the controversial Heartland and Alter developments. His concern for growth and the construction jobs it provides has won him support of trade groups, although membership traditionally votes Democratic.

He also has support from local taverns, snowmobile and outdoor groups as well as several key Round Lake area politicians.

When asked about his trio of jobs, Popp eagerly produces a letter he has on file with Illinois Bell advising them of his plans to retire if he is successful in his election bid. "Once I've made the commitment, that's it," he said.

Popp contends that Lake Villa Township is being run better than ever. To charges that clerk Dorothy Thompson actually runs the township, Popp is quick to credit the staff. "Dorothy, Jackie, Carol do an excellent job. The best ingredient is people. They're good employees who were interviewed and placed in these positions and have done an excellent job."

Popp said the shortcoming of his township administration is that more hasn't been done on street and drainage problems. "We're working with the Council of (association) Presidents and asking them to select the streets that need work so that everyone has input into the priorities," said Popp.

On the issue of solid waste, Popp says "no one should have to smell what we have (landfill) south of Grayslake on Rte. 83. You can sit on the Antioch High School grounds or even in downtown sometimes and smell that landfill," he said of another site.

"In 1976 (county board member) John Briddle was talking about incineration. Maybe something should have been done then to foster some support. I only know a little about it, but it seems that incineration and landfilling the ash is the answer and I'd gladly pay a little more to get that started," Popp said.

Antioch's salt supply on target

The latest, the heaviest, and what most people hope is the last, snowfall of this winter season started in the Antioch area late Wednesday, March 7, getting the heaviest through the morning of Thursday, March 8.

Approximately four inches piled up but the village of Antioch's Street Dept. was prepared and had three plows out at 3 a.m..

The plows were followed by the sanding and salting trucks that gave their attention to the slippery intersections.

According to Todd Maplethorpe, head of the village maintenance crews, this has been a normal year as far as keeping the streets of Antioch clear of ice and snow.

To date, his department has used approximately 325 tons of salt to keep the streets safe. The average amount used yearly ranges in the 300 ton area.

"We've done more sanding and salting than plowing this year," Maplethorpe said.

"We usually work 12-hour shifts during a heavy snow fall, three men per shift. This latest one had nine men out clearing the streets," said Maplethorpe.

The village trucks usually take care of plowing the streets first and then they take care of the parking lots, etc.

So Antioch's salt reserve is hitting bottom, just the way it's supposed to with spring hopefully just around the corner.

Local school heads Congress into much ado about not much

by GLORIA DAVIS

With all the legislative action taking place in Washington concerning the possibility of putting voluntary prayer in some form back into the public schools, the Antioch News talked to local school administrators about their views on the subject.

A strong belief in separation of church and state was a unanimous one among those that are in charge of the schools in the Antioch area.

Many of them were very vociferous about their feeling that Congress should aim its time and efforts towards other deficiencies in U. S. education, namely finding more funding for the schools.

Stage review

'Complex' bubbles with fun, good entertainment

by JEAN RYBICKI

Most of the bubbles in Andre's Steak House's new dinner theater production, "Champagne Complex," billow from the performance of well-known local thespian, Pan Guardi.

Long type cast as the sex symbol, Guardi is right on top of things as she does her best to be the girl her "Mamma's Boy," of a fiancée wants her to be and steals the show.

Donald Crop is very convincing as the analyst and does a good job delivering some of the shows most entertaining lines.

Brian Blanchard's version of the boyfriend, Helms Fell Harper, is a familiar one, not unlike some of his other reditons on Andre's stage.

I found the play a fast moving one, discovering an impatience for each next scene's events to unfold.

Definitely adult entertainment, the script is a witty one and the well-cast actors seem to be enjoying entertaining a pleased audience.

The management of Andre's has asked me to remind those of you who decide to go see "Complex" that the theater entrance is in the rear of the restaurant.

In Australia, a man was sentenced to 7 days in jail for swearing in a beagle's presence.

tificates of awards of its meeting on July 24. The deadline for receipt of completed applications is June 1.

Raise funds for Barb Richardson

The Committee to elect Barbara Richardson for Coroner of Lake County is sponsoring "An Afternoon with Barbara," on Sunday, March 18, at the Tower Room, Antioch Bowl Complex, Rte. 173, West, from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Come to hear Richardson's views on the duties of a coroner. Refreshments will be served.

Richardson, Brophy clash for coroner

by ROGER RUTHART
Managing Editor

Is the Lake County Coroner's office being run in a professional manner, administered properly and according to the law?

That is the issue that has developed as Dr. James Brophy, a dentist from Ingleside, and incumbent coroner, Barbara Richardson of Grayslake, square off in the Republican Primary.

"I started talking about a lack of administration and professionalism and thought what greater charges can be made against an office?" said Dr. Brophy. "Then I started hearing about a lot of other little things that are going on and the others pale in comparison."

Richardson says that the measure of professionalism of her office is "word and deed. My staff is the most professional of any in the state."

Under her administration, all three sides of the coroner's office, the medo/legal sides as well as a third compassionate side, have received equal consideration, she said.

All of her staff have received top training in their fields and are not political appointees. While she will be looking for a new chief deputy, that person "won't have to be political. The person must have a law enforcement background and be a caring individual," said Richardson.

As the campaign wears on, Richardson retains the cloud of a lawsuit filed against her for the alleged political firing of three employees, as well as a state's attorney's investigation into charges filed by one of those employees, Glen MacIntyre.

Dr. Brophy contends that the office does not conduct inquests as specified by law, does not keep its records in bound notebooks as specified by law and needs to have its toxicology lab certified so its findings can be admissible in court.

He says he is concerned about charges of jury tampering, using the office for political purposes including mailing of election material in coroner's stationery off the Lake County postal meter, charges of theft from the deceased and the current staff of political appointees not having the ability to determine the means and cause of death.

Brophy said when he looks to the accomplishments of the coroner in her year in office he sees that four of the six employees of the department were fired, three of them are suing the county for $1.5 million charging they were terminated for political reasons, two chief deputies were hired to do the job of one, and employees working needed overtime to prepare cases for court prosecution were not paid for overtime or given compensating time off.

"And the office ran over the all-time high budget of a quarter million dollars and had to ask for more money to complete the year," said Dr. Brophy.

"When asked to account for the record, or debate, we get 'no comment', 'no debate' and no accountability to the public she serves," said Brophy.

"If the charges are true, something should be done. If they are false, she should be cleared of them, but the issue should be resolved," said Brophy.

Brophy also questioned the budgeting for the coroner's office. He noted that from 1981-82 to 1982-83, there was a $50,082 increase in capital expenditures for the department for the purchase of vehicles. However, the following year, the budget was left the same, not reduced, and the money switched from capital expenditures to salaries.

Richardson said the shortfall in the department's budget was due to the fact that the budget was based on the number of autopsies performed the year before. "We did 20 more autopsies so far this year due to reckless homicide and that's where the budget got into trouble," said Richardson.

Supt. Don Skidmore said, "I don't think you can legislate religion," and added, "Congress has far more important social and political issues to resolve instead of spending all this time and money debating whether or not prayers can be said in public schools under the Constitution."

Supt. Warren Polley of Antioch High School said that the issue actually seems to apply more to the elementary schools than the secondary ones since the students in high school start their rounds of the changing classes immediately when school starts and are not together in the old homeroom sense where any prayers could be said.

Polley added that he didn't like anything like this that would be mandated, referring to the possibility of prayer in school being made a law.

Upper Grade School principal Bill Herbst said, "What this all boils down to is that they keep trying to put more responsibility on the schools."

He added that he thought religious training should start at home.

"If I thought it would make one bit of difference, or make any change in the children's sense of values, I'd jump on it, but I don't," he said.

All the administrators agreed that if school prayer is legislated, it would probably not be much of a problem in Antioch. They all did express concern on how it could be handled in the many areas of the country where there is a large mixture of religions and ethnic groups.

Supt. John Kakacek of Emmons Grade

School had no personal opposition to prayer in public schools, saying any prayer that is used would have to include all religions, adding that compiling this "would be a large task."

"It would really be better if the children prayed at home over breakfast with the rest of the family," Kakacek said.

Supt. Ricahrd Hogan of Grass Lake School said, "If a child comes to school with good church and home training, there will be no worries about prayer in school."

Petty School Principal Paul Hain believes in the separation of church and state and does not think that prayer belongs in the public school.

He said the whole comparison of having God on our coins, prayer in Congress, and the fact that "God Bless America," might take over as our national anthem if it were put to a vote, but God not in our school system, brought up many good questions.

"I hope that those who have to decide the whole thing are wiser or at least as wise as we," he said.

Walt Soderman from Oakland Grade School was not available for comment at press time.

Herbst added, "This is just the tip of the iceberg and the whole thing is tied in with the private sector involvement in getting government funding. Church related matters should be kept in church and not in public schools that are supported by public taxes."

Harley Ware, principal of Antioch Lower Grade School, voiced an opinion echoed by many of the others adding up to "Much ado about not much."

"Congress has a lot more important things to think about," he added.

The first mailboxes were erected in Paris in 1653. However, messengers, fearful for their livelihood, put mice in the boxes to destroy the mail; thus, no further attempt to install mail boxes was made in Paris until 1758.

The Time Machine

When I think about it

Even the innocent should have rights

by GLORIA DAVIS

The reactions of people never cease to amaze me. Having reached a mellow Serutan age, I've learned that the freedoms guaranteed us by the democracy we live in often produce strange spin-off translations of those freedoms.

One recent example was the reaction of some of the media, school personnel, students and parents to the placement of an undercover cop in a local high school in an effort to solve burglaries thought to have been committed by teenagers.

This short-lived police infiltration produced the criminals and, maybe more importantly, did not produce evidence of major drug activity in the high school.

To the school administrators and law enforcement agencies that said they would never cooperate in such an activity because of its "Big Brother" syndrome, might I suggest that, with just a slight twist in thought, all investigations of any kind can, with a stretch of the same imagination that they seem to possess, smell of that same relative.

Invasion of privacy is one thing, but I have yet to see a criminal willing to be up front about their activities, and few people who have nothing to fear from the law would object to such investigative tactics when used for their own protection from those who choose to break the law.

The breaking of any law really affects everyone individually when you think about it. Not only can we be personally, physically, or financially harmed by a lawbreaker, but the cost of any criminal act indirectly is passed on to Mr. Average Joe, from the rise in taxes for law enforcement and penalization, down to the rise in retail prices because of the amortization of the cost of theft loss.

What this all comes right down to is the new American theology of the protection of the criminal in deference to the protection of the innocent.

Certainly something like this could get out of hand, and there been cases where innocent people have been unduly harassed by law enforcement agencies, if we are to believe facts like those that have been revealed about the actions of the FBI under J. Edgar Hoover.

But again, everything is relative, if citizens would really care and pay attention when the vote for those in public office and keep tabs on them after they are elected, the chances of agencies operating in such a fashion would be slimmed down quite a bit.

Any parent of students in that high school should be grateful to know that drug activity seems to be at a minimum in that particular school.

And any parent who would object to a student locker search, aimed at turning up drugs, liquor or stolen property must be the same kind that has often made the mistake of saying "My kid would never do that!"

Trust is not part of love. It is a faith that is earned and one that is strong enough to survive, in fact thrive, on scrutiny.

If you think that the teen alcohol, drug consumption and the juvenile crime rate is indicative of the staff of a high school trusting an entire student body consisting of more than 1,000 kids, "Pollyanna" must be your middle name.

To the school administrator that said such a move must be directly connected with education to be justified, get your nose out of those books long enough to realize that one of the greatest bits of education is learning that "crime should not pay."

What could a student have in a school locker that could not withstand administrative inspection?

If any of the students felt "betrayed" because the undercover cop approached them under false pretenses, where are your sense of values?

Be glad that your future is being protected by such people who are trying to ferret out criminals before their actions can directly affect you.

Sometimes immature people have the attitude, "my friend, wrong or right." In refusing to "rat" on them, these people have not realized that the best way to be a friend to somebody who is involved in illegalities, is not to protect them, but to see that they receive help.

This can only be done if the proper agencies are aware of their actions.

According to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, "The Constitution speaks of liberty and prohibits the deprivation of liberty without the due process of law. In prohibiting that deprivation, the Constitution does not recognize an absolute uncontrollable liberty."

Or as someone once said, "If you keep a clean house, you won't have to be too embarrassed to hire a cleaning lady."

Not only did the girls on the Antioch High School varsity bowling team do well this year but individual honors go to high rollers Kim Stender, who led the squad with an average of 162 or more for 108 games, and Jeri Gutowski who had a high series of 608.

Here's another poetic thought from Pat Chapman.

Exercises good etiquette.
Daily good manners, should be requisite.
Be a lady, be a gent, be eloquent.
Living one's life with finesse and style

Committeemen to rebut letters

According to Chuck Kempf, chairman of the Antioch Republican committeemen, the anonymous letters afloat that are charging that the committeemen do not consider all the facts, support candidates whose political philosophies are wrong, and let their personal feelings enter into whom they nominate for office, are less than ethical parts of political campaigning.

Kempf claims that the letters do not mention considering a candidate's credibility, honesty, integrity and working for the best interest of the party as important candidate qualities.

"We have very little known facts at our disposal about proposed candidates when we decide on our nominations," Kempf said.

In order to draft a letter to the editor in rebuttal of these unsigned letters, the four Antioch Township Republican Committeemen, Kempf, Gordon Kilsen, Grant Township, Chuck Oplawski, Avon Township and Glenn Moore of Lake Villa Township, have met and the letter should appear in the Thursday, March 15, edition of the Lakeland Newspapers.

Ask Dr. Sven

by Robert T. Sven B.S.D.D.S.

TEETH AND THE HEART

Q. Is there any relationship between health of teeth and the heart?

A. A tooth abscess or infection is likely to affect ANY organ of the body if the infection is neglected and permitted to travel. For that reason, any illness or symptom involving teeth should get the same prompt and careful attention given to other medical disorders.

An abscessed tooth causes high fever and toxicity which can move through the body. If the patient has a history of heart valve problems or rheumatic fever, he or she may develop a heart condition called "endocarditis." This is an inflammation of the lining of the heart and its valves and can be fatal.

Since abscessed teeth are usually the result of extensive decay, the best protection against endocarditis and other complications arising from mouth infections is proper diet, oral hygiene, and intelligent dental care.

Softball opening remains

Louies Waterhole, Hwy. 83, in Salem, held its annual softball meeting on Sunday, March 4. With the addition of lights on their second diamond, the opening of new leagues, and the recent affiliation with the U.S.S.S.A. Softball Assn., interest is running high.

The results of the meeting showed that over 50 teams were represented and that a few leagues are already filled. There still are some men's and women's openings, and anyone who is interested should contact Jim LeQuesne at (414) 843-2934 or Bob Axen at (414) 843-2130.

Solid waste

Popp also supports the sheriff's programs for making the department more visible including sending the squad cars home with deputies. Popp said that Neighborhood Watch programs have worked in Lake Villa Township and should be encouraged and maintained county-wide, "but usually when the vandalism stops they forget about the program," he added.

Popp doesn't support a special taxing district to provide additional patrols in unincorporated areas. In the past, Lake Villa Township has provided patrols, in cooperation with the sheriff, using revenue sharing funds, he noted.

Popp also believes it is time the county look at its zoning ordinances "and see if we can enforce them."

Popp said that when it takes 2½ years to resolve a problem with a dilapidated building and extension after extension is granted after the owner does $50 worth of work, "that gets the neighborhood mad. The same thing with junk cars in the yards. We need to look at things like that."

Popp said the county also needs to better supervise the contractors hired to do county work. He charged that in some cases in Lake Villa Township the pipe called for in sewer and water work was not used and there were no county inspectors on the job to assure that it was done right. "They (contractors) need to know they're being watched," said Popp.

Popp also would like to see the county do more to promote the Chain O' Lakes. "We should look at what we can do," he said.

Expansion of the county jail "I guess is what we have to do," said Popp, who would like to see more people sentenced to public service work hours. "That's time better spent than sitting in jail," he added.

Popp said he hasn't seen the study on the jail expansion, "but it looks like we need it. The facilities are there (Waukegan) so we should keep it there, but I don't know how they could be expanded at that site," he said.

Popp said he supports the Forest Preserve program for buying property along the Des Plaines River, "if there's a willing seller and a willing buyer." But in the case of the Fourth Lake Fen near Lindenhurst, Popp said he can't support the county condemning someone else's land. "There's no way they want to sell, so we shouldn't buy it," he said, adding "I don't think we should buy land for the forest preserve and then put up No Trespassing signs and leave it."

Popp said he would have to know more before commenting on the position the county took in the Heartland and Alter incidents which have led to expensive lawsuits.

Popp said four or five candidates will probably emerge for the position of county board chairman and he won't commit his support until he knows who will run.

Popp criticized current chairman, Glenn Miller, for his appointments to the Forest Preserve's Land Acquisition Committee, saying "everyone on it is buy, buy, buy."

Popp said Miller "isn't very strong" about his leadership on the floor of the County Board. "A decision needs to be made. Either talk about it or don't. A lot of things are allowed to happen on the floor that shouldn't. Sometimes they try to make fools of each other and it's allowed and that's wrong," said Popp.

Popp said the county should have no problem in collective bargaining with its employees when the time comes. "I've been doing it for 30 years with Illinois Bell. If they deserve it, they should get it, but I don't think public employees should strike. Mandatory arbitration is fine and it should be retroactive to the contract date, but no striking."

Popp said he believes that the county's staff does not wield too much power and influence over elected officials. "Staff is your right hand if you have the right people, because they're the experts in that area. Some members do more than others. Some do their own studies and resist staff, others let the staff do the work and don't do as much. I like to research and question," said Popp.

"If they (county board member) don't show resistance once in a while, they're not the right people for the job. The boss has to remind them who's in charge once in a while," Popp added.

Popp said he'd also like to see quarterly meetings held outside of Waukegan in various communities, possibly even in the evening. "People in the fourth district might like to see a county board meeting and not lose a day's pay. This would give them an opportunity to get involved without driving to Waukegan," Popp added.

Popp credited Miller's administration with facing the problems of solid waste and police protection for the unincorporated areas, adding he'd like to see the next chairman be from west Lake County. He wants a working chairman, not just someone who wants to see their name in the papers or who works for personal gain.

"That person has to be prepared to do what's best for the whole county, not just their district," Popp added.

Candidates like Norm Geary, Bob Depke, Miller and even Vice Chairman Helen Amendola can be expected to be considered, said Popp, who added others like Jerry Beyer of Wauconda or Bill LaBelle of Zion might qualify to be added to the list in his opinion.

Jim Fields sees the solid waste study and building code consideration as the key issues confronting the next county board.

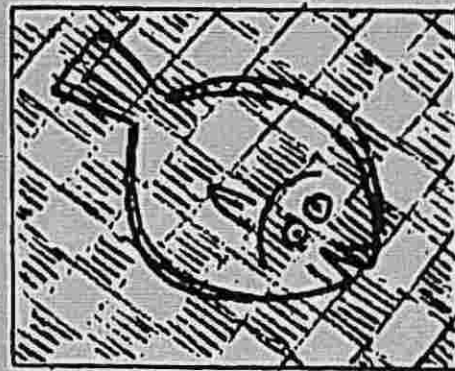

The waste problem, Fields noted, started in Antioch "and the direction it's going is excellent," said Fields, who serves on the solid waste advisory committee. "The committee is really working and working well and in the right direction."

"The alternatives are good. One of the three types of incineration, plus landfilling is best. Landfilling is unavoidable," said Fields, who added that the facility should be county owned and operated "to give us a better watch over it, whatever system we choose."

Fields said that there are some points of the BOCA basic building code that he doesn't agree with, but believes that there are needs for additional building codes in Lake County.

"Adoption of the entire BOCA Code would mean enlarging the building and zoning department by 12 to 14 employees to enforce it," Fields warned. The incumbent added that the state's attorney's office needs to enforce and process cases faster, "and some of the biggest problems are right here in Antioch Township," he added.

LAKE COUNTY CLERK

Illinois law requires that the names of Presidential Candidates and United States Senator be rotated on the ballot according to Legislative District; thus, the name which leads the others on the Democratic and Republican Ballot Pages will be different in the 4 Legislative Districts. Any benefit which may accrue to the first ballot position is distributed equally among the candidates.

The county jail and courthouse should remain together and remain in Waukegan, Fields said. "If they decide to build a new jail and sheriff's department I may not be opposed, but they can't be separated," he said.

Fields says he "pretty much agrees" with the administration of County Board Chairman Glenn Miller. "But sometimes things go through committee that people outside of that committee aren't notified of so we can provide input. You don't always want to take the committee's recommendation."

Fields said the forest preserve's program to purchase land along the Des Plaines River is "going well. If they want further purchases outside that, unless there's a proven need to enhance an existing forest preserve, I won't be in favor of it," he added. "I'd never be in favor of another bond issue (to purchase land)."

Fields said that he and Chairman Miller "get along quite well, but sometimes we could use someone a little stronger."

"It upsets me that department heads are running us at times. We need a little stronger person to let us know what's going on."

The county should be involved in developing Lake Michigan water resources. "It's going to be a necessity," he added.

Fields also supports the county's Framework Plan detailing future proposed land uses.

"The tollways and highways have planned our county, like it or not," said Fields, who believes the county will still be relying on the zoning board of appeals. "It will be three or four years before we'll implement it in rezoning land from the zoning that now exists," he added.

Fields said that law enforcement in the county is improving and the visibility program has been a big help in the unincorporated areas. "It's my observation that there's been better cooperation under Babcox between the deputies and municipalities," Fields added.

He said he is opposed to a special taxing district to provide for additional patrols in unincorporated areas.

Joe Tobolik says he is dismayed that most residents either don't know what a county board member is, or they're not registered to vote.

He sees the main issue in the campaign as taxes. "Legal fees for the Alter and other lawsuits have to be paid by someone and that's the taxpayers. The county board is placing them in an awkward position and our tax structure is getting pretty stiff," said Tobolik.

"People are looking for good jobs for decent wages," says Tobolik, and encouraging growth and development in Lake County is one way of helping to provide them.

Tobolik isn't convinced that incinerating garbage is the way to go. There are 200 incinerators in the U.S., he points out. They are costly to start up and not one is economically feasible, he contends. "And there is no demand for the by-products," he warned.

"To make an incinerator worthwhile, you need a certain volume of garbage and that means a commitment from all the villages in the county to use it. We can't even get the five villages in the Round Lake area to agree on some things. How can we get 47 in the county?" Tobolik questioned.

"If there was effective machinery, don't you think every county in the country would have one? The problems we're talking about are not unique to Lake County," he added.

Tobolik, who is employed in the adult probation department with Lake County, sees a serious concern for jail facilities. "When there's too many in jail we have to let out the ones with a lesser potential for creating problems to society," he explained.

"We need to expand the facility either by enlarging the present one or building a satellite. Either way we're talking more dollars from the taxpayer. Soon our priorities and concerns have to get down to dollar values," said Tobolik.

He also believes that county board members, especially in district four, should be involved in improving the Chain O' Lakes.

Calling it "our best natural resource" Tobolik said the county should do everything in its power to work with legislators, and at the county level, to provide for legislation to clean up the lakes "and restore the vitality."

"We're the third largest county in the state and project a lot of votes in major elections" and the county politicians are not using that political influence sufficiently at the state level, Tobolik believes.

District Four County Board members should also be an integral part of the proposed Chain O' Lakes-Fox River Management Agency.

"Right now it's a big secret. I think the board members, especially district four, should be encompassed into the body, not as members of the commission, but they should know what's going on and then be accountable to the taxpayers of the district. They should be intelligent enough to be able to answer questions of their constituents as to what's happening and be available to provide input to the commission," Tobolik believes.

"Even though it's not a county board issue, they shouldn't be looking the other way on something that involves all four townships in district four," he added.

Tobolik disputes charges that he didn't represent the best interests of all the residents of district four when he asked for a legal opinion on the county's agreement with Grayslake that blocked the Alter development in Round Lake Park and led to the $28 million lawsuit.

"I asked for the legal opinion and Norm Geary introduced the motion to block it. Joe Tobolik had the guts to face the opposition, yet he's painted as the guy in the black hat. I proved them wrong," he said, pointing toward the recent jury decision which went against the county and Village of Grayslake.

"Geary didn't want that opinion and it's going to end up costing us $28 million and that too comes right back to the taxpayer," he added.

Tobolik believes that enough has been spent to buy forest preserve district land. He points out that although a $29 million bond issue was passed to buy the land, because of interest, the county has spent well over $35 million, using the interest to buy more land.

"I believe that money should have been used to pay off the bonds and defray the cost to the taxpayers. The people approved $29 million for land and by going beyond that they (forest preserve) acted not in good faith," said Tobolik.

"I'm enthusiastic and aggressive and will match my attendance record against any board member," said Tobolik. "I'm not always right, but I always stood up and was counted. I was always in my seat when roll was called."

Tobolik also contends that a state's attorney ruling, which was made but never enforced, and says a supervisor who is a county board member, can't vote on budgets or contracts, should be enforced.

"The law is the law. Why doesn't the state's attorney do something about it?" said Tobolik. "Geary, as chairman of the finance committee, is involved in every motion on budgets and contracts. It's an issue the state's attorney doesn't want to handle because there are five supervisors on the county board who are Republican and influential in the community.

"I'd clean it up now before his opponent gets a chance to attack him on it," said Tobolik.

In summary, Tobolik said "people don't care what you did yesterday. That may help to stabilize you as consistent or dependable, but people want to know what you'll do for them tomorrow."

Janet Kapischke believes that attendance is a key to the election. People need to elect someone they know will attend committee meetings and voice an opinion and have time to devote to the county board.

As an example, she points to the implementation of the five-digit house numbering system in the county, which she called "a bombshell" when it was put into affect, especially affecting the fourth district.

"Where was our representation? Doing two jobs or not doing the job at all. When something like that takes place and people feel like government is really complicating their lives for no apparent reason, this is a sign that their representatives are too busy or just plain not functioning."

"It seems that a lot of people in district four doggedly oppose everything that takes place at the county level. There is no way we can secede from county government so we serve our own interests by sending people to represent us who will take the time to find out exactly what every issue means and how it will impact west Lake County," said Kapischke.

Kapischke believes that incineration may be a step toward curing the solid waste problem, "if we make sure we have total cooperation among our villages and municipalities. If we have a customer for all the energy we generate, then it would seem a good idea."

She would like to see the county build a smaller facility first and then expand when that is proven a winner.

Landfills will still be needed, "but (Continued on Page 8) shouldn't be over fresh drinking water supplies."

She would also like to contribute toward "finding a more efficient method of resolving building and zoning violations. This can benefit each and every citizen in my district because this would help protect the largest investment a person makes in his lifetime—his home," said Kapischke.

Many things dictate growth, said the candidate, and it's the job of the county board to plan for the good of the entire county.

"Geographically, we can't avoid development. We can't pick the county up and move it somewhere else."

As problems the county faces become more complex, county board members need to rely on the expertise of the staff. "A county board member can't be an expert on health care, solid waste, transportation and zoning. But they have to be able to sift the facts and make a decision," Kapischke said.

Kapischke said she has, and plans to, represent every taxpayer in the district and opposes the idea of electing a representative from each township. "If that's a valid idea, why would a taxpayer in Grayslake want to contribute to my salary (in taxes) or vote for me?" she questioned.

The County Board is moving toward the goal of solving its problems of the jail and courthouse crowding, instead of allowing them to languish. "The current administration has gotten a lot done and when I was on the board we got a lot done," said Kapischke.

"I suppose we'll be mandated to provide another (jail) facility. I think we have to reach the point where the prison population will have to contribute to their own keep. They're going to have to lend a hand to justify their stay," she continued.

She has no strong feelings on where a new facility should be located. "The committee that sits on that will have a duty to do," she added.

She believes that the county should now begin working on development of the forest preserves that exist. "It's time for the people to use and enjoy the land we have. 10 years from now, district four will be grateful for the (forest preserve) land they have. The beauty of the land is fast diminishing. There's no changing, no going back."

Kapischke said she would like to see the county do something for the Chain, "it's a priceless resource, but the tax dollar pie is only so big and the expenditures have to be placed in order of importance," she said.

Collective bargaining with county employees should not be a problem, she asserts. "It's a two way street and depends on what posture the employees take. We have top flight employees, but collective bargaining will show what kind of individual employees and county government we have. They're our neighbors and friends and people around us," said Kapischke.

She believes that still more patrols need to be provided by the sheriff's department for the unincorporated areas. "People ought to feel like they're protected. They (deputies) do a difficult job and we need the area of law enforcement to be bolstered."

"I live in a village and have police, and a big dog, so I have no problems, but this is an area we have to look at for those who don't. People want a greater presence. That's one of the things I hear," said Kapischke.

"County government should do for the people what they can't do for themselves," she added.

Conserving gas is really up to you. But we'll provide a little incentive.

When it comes to reducing the amount of natural gas you use, you and your family are the only ones in a position to do something.

But Northern Illinois Gas is in a position to help.

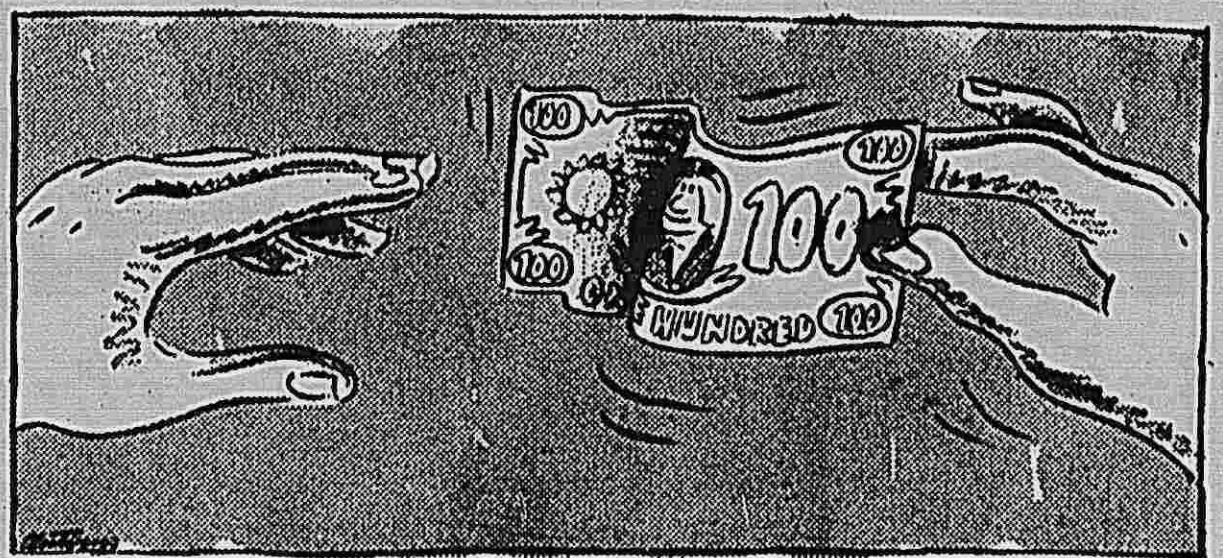

And that's exactly what we intend to do with two programs that will make it less expensive for you to replace your existing gas heating equipment.

$100 toward energy efficient heating equipment: If you buy a new energy efficient furnace or boiler, you deserve to get some credit.

And you will: a $100 credit on your coming bills, 50% provided by Northern Illinois Gas, 50% provided by participating heating equipment manufacturers, on certain energy efficient models.

Financing for conservation measures: If, instead of the $100 credit, you'd rather have help financing the cost of new high efficiency equipment, Northern Illinois Gas will provide financing. You can get this financing when you buy a high efficiency furnace or boiler, and also for a high efficiency water heater and/or automatic set-back thermostat, if purchased with a furnace or boiler.

Don't call us. Call your participating dealer: Even though these are Northern Illinois Gas programs, provided by us, we're not the people you should call, if you're interested. Because these programs will be available only through participating heating equipment dealers. So, if you're interested in either program, contact the dealer of your choice.

Northern Illinois Gas, one of the nation's most efficient utilities, provider of some of the lowest cost natural gas in the U.S., encourages you to use less gas. And is ready and willing to help.

Now, what more could you ask of a gas company?

Richardson

tamper with the jury and it's not possible anyway," said Richardson. "The jurors all have a strong mind of their own."

"I plead guilty to having employees run errands for me on occasion. I've done it for people I've worked with too."

"All of the charges are under investigation by the state's attorney's office, but I know I haven't done anything wrong. When that day comes, I don't want the job any more," said Richardson.

"There is no politics in the office. You can ask anyone who works there. All I ask is that they do the most professional job they can do. That's their support of my candidacy," said Richardson. "I'm the politician, and only because I have to be because it's a political position. But I like to think what I'm doing as a politician is professional at all times," she added.

"We have a very busy office and it can't be done by one person. It's not a medical office. The coroner is the administrator," Richardson explained. "We don't require the sheriff to be in law enforcement or the treasurer to be a banker or the circuit court clerk an attorney."

"We are a team because we have to be. Everyone does the job that has to be done and everyone has to get along," she added.

Prior to being named coroner, Richardson was deputy coroner and administrative assistant for six years. She explained that there is no resemblance in the coroner's office today and that prior to 1976.

"When I went to work for Mickey (Babcox, former coroner, now sheriff), one assignment I was given was to change the image of the office and make people aware of what it is all about. It's an ongoing educational opportunity."

"Except for a little segment of government, most people have no idea what we're doing. They're afraid. They don't want to talk about death. We have tried to become aware of the compassionate side and realize that there are survivors out there," she continued. "Anyone can reach me at any time of the day or night. I try to give them a feeling of trust and caring."

Richardson is a lifelong resident of Grayslake. She has received her training through seven years in the coroner's office and courses in death investigation, administration and grief counseling.

She also has a background in community service work including the United Way, Northern Illinois Council on Alcoholism, Interfaith Community Services, Central Baptist Family Service, Compassionate Friends, League of Women Voters, Altrusa Club, American Legion Auxiliary, Order of Eastern Star Sorosis Chapter, United Protestant Church, YWCA, Crisis Center, Catholic Charities and CLC Foundation.

Dr. Brophy contends none of those qualify her to be coroner. He contends he is infinitely more qualified having studied biology at Loyola University and physics at Roosevelt University, receiving his dental degree at Loyola University where he also serves as assistant professor at Loyola Medical Center.

He served as deputy coroner and forensic odontologist from 1979-82, was involved in the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, graduating in forensic pathology, served as a pharmaceutical chemist at Baxter-Travenol, a dental surgeon and currently operates dental offices in Waukegan and Spring Grove.

"I've been interested in the office (coroner) for 10 years and working toward my credentials," said Brophy. He said appointing Richardson as coroner was like promoting a private to general and asking him to evaluate the other generals who graduated from West Point.

"She doesn't have the training to evaluate the equipment or personnel on that level," Brophy charged.

Both candidates have plans for the office if elected.

Dr. Brophy said his are all important and will cost very little money.

They include establishing a procedure manual and establishing office policy; bringing the current staff up to date in training, education and techniques to professionalize the office including establishing a coroner's review board and enlisting county professionals on a volunteer basis to help the office.

Other plans include modernizing the toxicology lab, certifying it with the Communicable Disease Center; updating the coroner's mass disaster plan; promoting the organ donor program; increase participation in medical research programs; training staff to take vital signs on all calls before removal of the body to the morgue to ensure that the victim needs the coroner and not a physician; implementation of a school drug abuse and alcohol abuse program; providing traffic and accident statistics that can be useful in suggesting safety needs for certain areas to prevent future deaths; and instituting a legislative advocacy program, monitoring legislation pertaining to the coroner's office.

Richardson said she is in the process of organizing an immediate grief support group. "We have something for widows and suicides but nothing for someone suddenly thrust into a grieving situation," said Richardson. "Until the death of my brother last fall I didn't realize the need, but I didn't know where to go with my grief."

She also sees a need for in-service training for all faculty of all schools in the county. "They are forced to deal with death and dying nearly every day, whether it's a bird or guppy or grandpa or the lady who works in the cafeteria."

"We had a playground death in Waukegan and 200 people in the school witnessed the death, yet they knew nothing about what to do about it," said Richardson. "They tried to ignore it hoping it would go away."

"The time has come that we have to find a way to train them to deal with it. Those two will be my thrust this year," she added.

Efforts will continue in the areas of alcoholism and drug abuse. "We have to get an educational process to the kids in the schools. It's an ongoing thing."

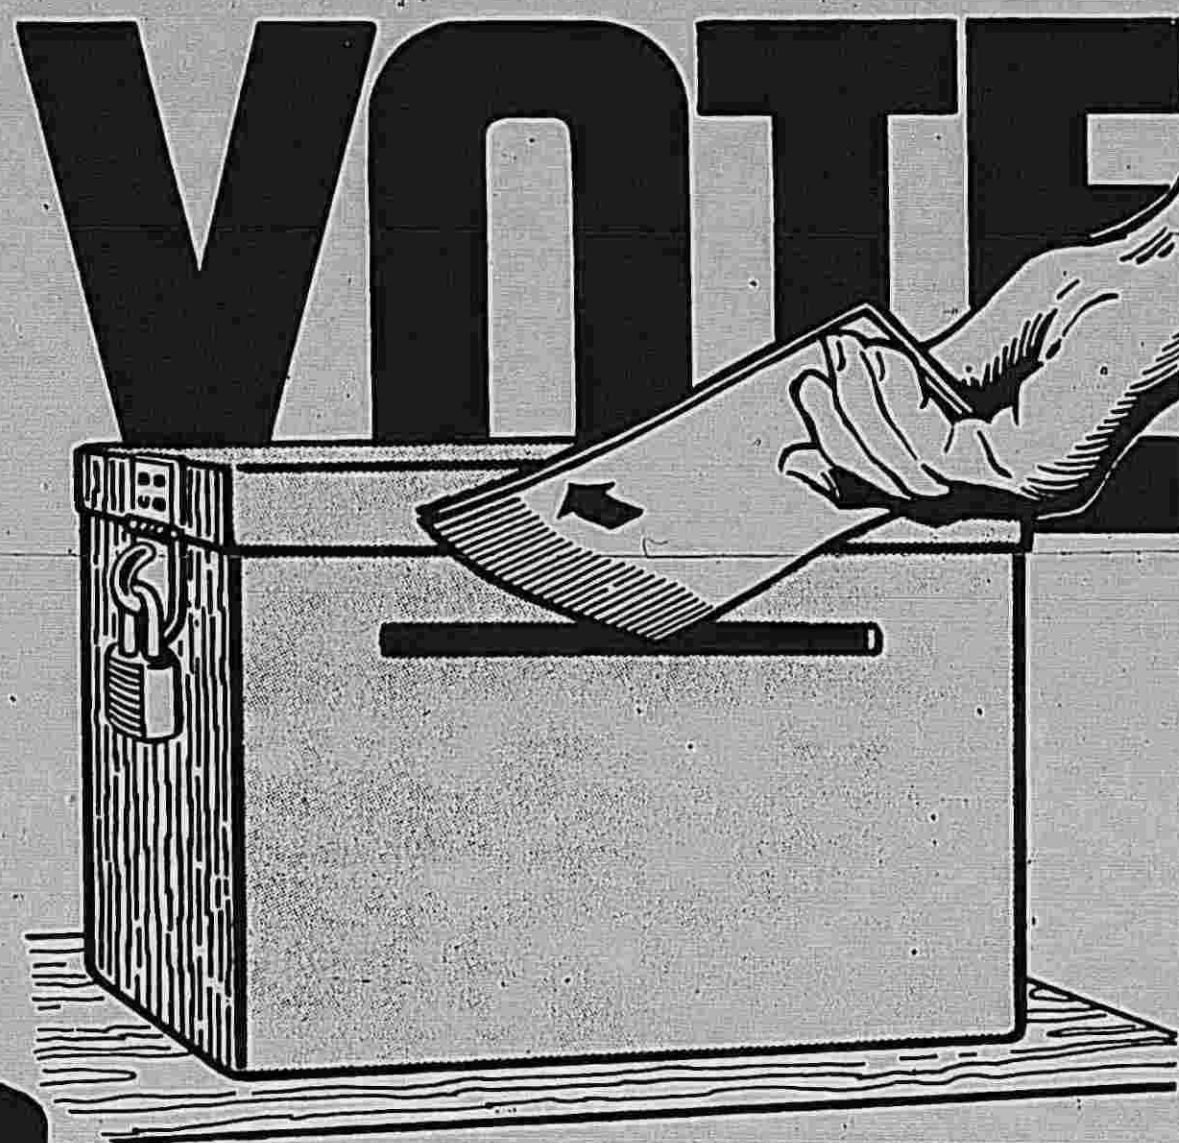

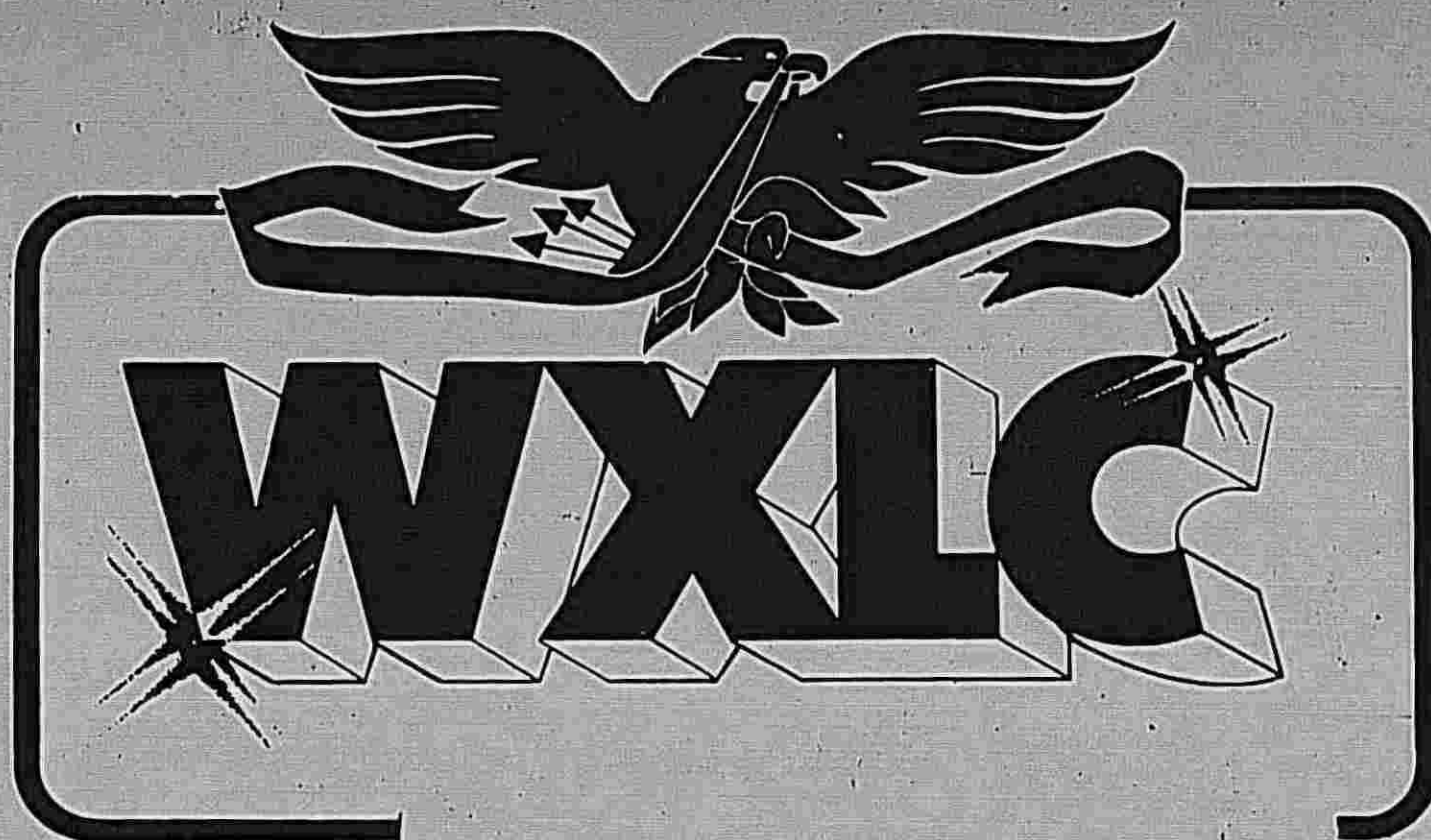

"I know the personnel the department needs and I have professionalized it. I coach the team, head the corps, supervise, authorize and investigate, and I'm the only one on call 24-hours a day," said Richardson.

"The programs I have suggested for the office are a mix of administrative improvements and medical advances," said Dr. Brophy. "Someone without an adequate background could not even conceive of these ideas, let alone implement them. I have published my education, my experience and my training that qualifies me to bring the coroner's office out of the dark ages of petty machine politics to an efficient modern functioning office of coroner that this county deserves and should demand," said Brophy.

Democrat Richard Bradshaw of North Chicago is unopposed in the Democratic Primary and will oppose Richardson or Dr. Brophy for the office in Nov. 1984 General Election.

Antioch takes regionals

The Sequoit varsity cagers came out winners as they took the regionals by beating Round Lake and Grant, putting them 13-14 overall, and 8-10 in the North Suburban Conference, tied for sixth place.

Antioch took the Panthers by breaking the century mark, topping them 101-80. John Humphreys had his high total score of the year with 32, followed by Steve Mueller with 21, Don Kor-jenek with 19, and Dan Berkiel with 11.

Mueller came through with 12 and Berkiel with 10 of Antioch's 39 rebounds to Round Lake's 17. But the turnover count was almost even with Antioch having 17 and the Panthers, 14.

Then on Friday, March 9, Antioch swamped the Grant Bulldogs, 76-57, with a good scoring spread. Berkiel led this one with 17, closely followed by both Korjenek and Mueller with 15 each. Humphreys marked down 11.

Antioch was big in the rebound area, this time with 35, Korjenek grabbed 10 of those and Berkiel accounted for 9. The Sequoits had 14 turnovers and Grant had 7.

Sequit Coach Don Zeman said that he was impressed by Round Lake's composure, but gave winning credit to Humphreys and Mueller and their good field shooting and Tom Mclelland for his 10 assists "to the man with the hot hand."

Zeman added that Antioch had wanted to control the ball from the start to the finish as they faced Grant and succeeded in doing this after they quickly overcame the small Grant lead in the beginning of the game. The lead belonged to the Sequoits until the final whistle blew.

The Sequoits will face Woodstock at Jefferson High School at 7:30 p.m., on Tuesday, March 13. It will be Rockford-Boyle or Rockford East on Friday, March 16, if they mark down a win over Woodstock.
